

Press Release #1
ProSleeve Golf

February, 2006

ProSleeve Golf LLC, a golf company based in Littleton, CO successfully launched the ProSleeve at the 2006 PGA Merchandise Show in Orlando, FL.

A ProSleeve Golf team consisting of people from various departments such as sales, accounting, manufacturing, tour relations, customer service, and management worked the show and introduced the product to the masses. The team also took part in the PGA Demo-day and the Golfest Demo-day.

“From the time the show opened until the time it closed, we were busy. In fact, we sold out of the entire product we brought to the show after the third day”, said Brian Egan, President, ProSleeve Golf.

“We had two major objectives at the PGA Show. The first was to introduce ProSleeve to the golf marketplace. The second was to find worldwide distribution. We definitely fulfilled both objectives”, stated Bob Lansford, VP of Sales, ProSleeve Golf.

The ProSleeve is a “triggered golf ball shag tube” designed to make practice fun and easy. The trigger allows the golfer to dispense one or multiple golf balls and then retrieve them with ease. The ProSleeve has a slim design and a handle that rotates 180 degrees for easy storage in golf bags.
